"Captain Apperson Dies"
Oregon City, Or., April 3

Captain J. A. Apperson died at the family home at Parkplace, about one mile from this city, today, after an illness of several months.

Captain Apperson was born near Hopkinsville, Christian County, Kentucky, December 23, 1834. With his parents he crossed the plains by ox team in 1847, and had resided in the state since that time, except for a time in California. He first made his home at what is now Fairview, and at that time there was but one settler besides the Apperson family.

He was State Senator from Oregon from 1878 until 1880, and Representative from 1889 until 1893. Previous to that time he was Sheriff of Clackamas County from 1874 until 1878, serving two terms. He was a member of the board of regents of the Oregon Agricultural College. He had always taken an active interest in the Oregon State Fair. For some time he was president of the State Board of Agriculture.

Mr. Apperson was probably the oldest Mason in the Northwest and the oldest member of the Oddfellow's Lodge No. 3. Mr. Apperson was a member of the Abernethy Grange at the time of his death. He was a master of the grange for some time.

He is survived by his widow, Mary A. Apperson, of Parkplace; one sister, Mrs. Elvira Fellows, who has made her home with her brother at Parkplace for a number of years, and one brother, Jacob Apperson.

BARCLAY, Maria
April 5, 1890; Oregonian; p 9
Mrs. Maria Barclay - Oregon City, April 4
"Brief Biographical Sketch of One of the Noted Pioneer Women of Oregon"

Maria Barclay, who died April 2, 1890, in this city, was the wife of Dr. Forbes Barclay, one of the earliest pioneers of this Northwest territory. She was associated with and helped to make the history of the territory which was the adopted home of her parents when she was but a child. She was the daughter of Peter and Catharine Pambrun and was born in British Columbia in 1826. Her father was a lieutenant in the Canadian army in 1812 and was afterwards chief factor in the Hudson Bay Company's employ. In 1831, he, with his family, came to Oregon and directly afterwards proceeded to Fort Walla Walla, of which post he continued in charge till 1841, when he was killed by a fall, and the family moved to Vancouver. During her life at fort Walla Walla she was intimately acquainted with all the missionaries of every denomination that visited this coast, as they were all entertained by her father.

The following year his daughter, then not yet 16 years of age, was married to Doctor Forbes Barclay, who was afterward prominently identified with the history of Oregon City and the territory and state of Oregon. Mrs. Barclay resided at Vancouver with her husband till 1850, when they moved to Oregon City. This city has been her home ever since. In 1873 she was called to follow her husband to the grave, where beside him on Sunday next, her form too will be laid to rest by loving friends.

Mrs. Barclay was a woman of strong constitution and was in good health up to a few weeks previous to her death, when she was attacked with a severe cold from which she suffered greatly. A few days before her death she was seized with a mild attack of codema of the larynx, but no alarm was felt till a few hours prior to her death, when the symptoms grew rapidly alarming, and at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning she died from strangulation. She was the mother of seven children, five of whom are living to mourn her loss. They are Peter, of San Francisco, Alexander, Katie and Mrs. Hattie Pratt, at home; and Charles at sea. Two, John and Edward are deceased. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Colonel McCracken, of Portland, and Mrs. L. W. Herger, of Chehalem, Washington, and four brothers in Eastern Oregon and Montana.

Mrs. Barclay was a woman of strong will and sterling integrity, accompanied with a kind disposition and a loving heart. Associated intimately with the people who lived the history of Oregon as a territory and a young state, and possessed of a wonderful memory stored with the facts and associations of pioneer life, she could talk by the hour of those early times. Many facts of interest connected with the early pioneer history are now lost, because they were only chronicled on memory's wall by a few, and she the last of the few. Among the earliest pioneers, she labored zealously, doing so far as she was able the part allotted her in life. One by one she saw her companions pass to the great unknown, till of the associates of those early pioneer days, when pioneer life meant so much trouble and so little reward, not one remains to minister to her in death, as she had so often done for many who have preceded her. She leaves none but friends, who will long remember her many excellent qualities and kind acts.

BARCLAY, Andrina Catherine
July 17, 1934; Oregonian, p 6
"Pioneer Daughter Dies"
Oregon City, Or., July 16

Miss Katie Barclay, 82, the last surviving child of the late Dr. Forbes Barclay and Maria Pambrun Barclay, early Oregon pioneers who settled in Oregon City in 1850, died today at the Oregon City hospital.

Her death removes one of the few persons who remember Dr. John McLoughlin and who recalled incidents of early days in the Oregon country, with which her forefathers' lives were closely linked. Her father, a native of the Shetland islands, entered the service of the Hudson's Bay company on July 4, 1839, and sailed for Fort Vancouver, where he remained until 1850. In 1842 he married Maria Pambrun, whose father, Pierre Pambrun, had charge of Fort Walla Walla. Dr. McLoughlin, Dugald McTavish, David McLaughlin and Adolph Lee Lewis were witnesses at the wedding of Miss Barclay's parents.

In a picturesque spot overlooking the Willamette river at Oregon City, Miss Barclay's father selected the site for the mansion which he built in 1850 at a cost of $17,000. It was in that house that Andrina Catherine (Katie) Barclay was born on January 26, 1852. She spent her entire lifetime, with the exception of a few trips into California and to other places of interest, within that house, which has housed five generations of Barclays.

Miss Barclay was the last of seven children, John James, Peter, Alexander Forbes, Harriet Maria (Pratt), William Charles and Edmond.

Miss Barclay was graduated from the Oregon City seminary on June 28, 1870.

Miss Barclay's only survivors are a nephew, Forbes Barclay Pratt of Portland; three nieces, Mrs. J. Nelson Wisner (Hattie Mary Pratt) of Buenos Aires, Argentina; Mrs. Jack Miles (Dolly Pratt) of Bonneville, and Miss Cis Barclay Pratt of Oregon City, who has been her companion in her last years.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from St. John's Catholic church, followed by interment in the family plot in Mountain View cemetery.

BARSTOW, Joseph
May 30, 1915; Oregonian, p 9
"Joseph Barstow Buried"
Oregon City, Or., May 29

Joseph Barstow, who died at the Portland Oddfellows' Home Thursday, was County Assessor of Clackamas County 35 years ago and was closely associated with the political history and the development of the North Willamette Valley in pioneer days. He was 86 years old.

Mr. Barstow crossed the plains in 1851 and first settled in Canemah. While living there he worked as a purser on several Upper Willamette steamers but a few years after his arrival he took up a homestead at Stafford.

In 1880 he was elected County Assessor on the Republican ticket and at the end of his first term was re-elected by a large majority. Following his two terms he spent a number of years here as Deputy Assessor. Later he moved to the Wilhoit district.

His wife died more than 30 years ago and one son, Butler Barstow, was killed near Wilhoit in a logging accident six years ago. One son living at Colfax, Wash., and two daughters, Mrs. William Berg, of Wilhoit, and Mrs. Joseph Day, of Grangeville, Idaho, survive. The funeral was held yesterday at Stafford and interment was made in the Stafford Cemetery.

BATES, Judson C.
May 26, 1911; Oregonian, p 17
"Clackamas Pioneer Dies"
Oregon City, Or., May 25

The funeral of Judson C. Bates, one of the early settlers of Clackamas County, who died Wednesday, will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow from the Redland Methodist Church, Rev. S. A. Hayworth officiating. Burial will be in the Redland Cemetery.

Mr. Bates was prominently identified with the county's development. He was born in Plymouth, Mass., June 29, 1831. At the age of 18 he was apprenticed to a carpenter and when 21 went to Boston. From there he went to New York City. In 1857 he came to Dane County, Wisconsin, where he bought 120 acres of heavily timbered land. He came to Oregon in 1872 and bought 140 acres, a part of the William Connell donation claim, at Redland.
His only relative in this state is Dr. E. E. Chase, of Silverton.

BARLOW, James W.
Aug. 21, 1920; Oregonian, p 11
"James W. Barlow Dead"
Oregon City, Or., Aug. 20

James W. Barlow, a member of one of the pioneer families of Oregon, and a resident of Clackamas county since his birth in 1863, died today at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Barlow of this city.

Mr. Barlow had been ill for two years, but was not considered seriously so until the last few days. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Barlow, a grandson of Samuel K. Barlow, of the early Barlow road farm, and a grandson of Samuel Miller, both early Oregon settlers. He made his home in and near Oregon City until 17 years ago, when he moved to his farm on the Molalla river, where he had since resided.

Survivors, besides his mother, are two children, Herbert and Vernice Barlow, of Salem; a brother, Frank T. Barlow, of Gladstone, and two sisters, Mrs. George A. Harding and Mrs. Nieta Barlow Lawrence, of Oregon City.

Funeral services will be held Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the Holman & Pace chapel, Rev. C. H. L. Chandler, pastor of the Episcopal church, officiating.

April 27, 1920; Oregonian, p 1
"Auto Kills E. Benson"
Oregon City, Or., April 26

Erick Benson, about 40 years old, was run down and killed by an automobile near Park place tonight. The man, who was carrying an I.W.W. card from the Seattle local, was struck as he dismounted from the rear of an auto truck on which he had been riding to Colton, Or., in search of work.

The driver of the big touring car, when he saw that he had struck a man, backed off the body and drove away in his machine at high speed before either his companion or the driver of the truck could ascertain the number of the touring car.

BOONE, Alphonso
"Pioneer of 1846 Dead"

The death of Captain Alphonso Boone, a great-grandson of Daniel Boone, carries away the last survivor of the Boone emigration across the plains to Oregon in 1846. Captain Boone's death occurred at his home near Sumner, Coos County, Oregon, March 29, in his 78th year. He began steamboating at an early age on the Willamette River, later on the Upper Columbia in the employ of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company, again on the Willamette and later on the Umpqua River, bringing the first and only boat up that river as far as Roseburg. His last steamboating was on Coos Bay.

He is survived by three sons and three daughters, James, Archie and Harry and Mrs. Kardell, Mrs. Belieu and Mrs. Hanson, all of Coos County.

The Boone emigration westward from Missouri began at Independence, in that state. In the early Spring of 1846 and consisted of Alphonso Boone, the father, his four sons and four daughters. The Boone train was met at Fort Hall and were the first to be turned into Southern Oregon over the Applegate cutoff, which led through rugged mountains and deep winding canyons. To escape this treacherous region before Winter overtook them, they abandoned their outfits in one of the canyons, and pushed on with the women and children on foot and horseback. A little later the men returned to attempt to get the abandoned outfits, but found that the Indians had destroyed all. Mr. Boone and his family then continued their way into the Willamette Valley, making their first settlement in Polk County for the Winter and Spring, then on into Clackamas County on the Willamette some 11 miles above Oregon City.

"Dr. Carll is Dead"
Oregon City, Or., Nov. 29

Dr. Walter E. Carll, one of the leading physicians of Oregon, whose home has been in this city for many years, died today after an illness of several months. Dr. Carll was well known throughout the county, and was one of Oregon City's most public-spirited citizens. He looked out for the interest of the people as well as the city, while he was Mayor of Oregon City, an office he held three years.

He was also a member of the Oregon City Board of School Directors, member of the State Board of Health, and was an ex-president of the State Medical Association. He was the first exalted ruler of Oregon City Lodge of Elks and also a member of the Masonic order and of the Sons of the Revolution.

Dr. Carll was born in Chicopee, Mass., October 26, 1858, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jason L. Carll, of English ancestors, who settled in this country previous to the Revolution.

Dr. Carll attended the public schools of his native city, and later Harvard, where he took the special medical course, and from that institution he graduated in 1885. He came to Oregon in 1886, settling at Portland, where he passed two years, coming to this city in 1888. He had practiced medicine here ever since. He was formerly a member of the State Board of Charities.

The body will be incinerated at the Crematorium in Sellwood, and the members of the commercial Club, Elks and Masons will attend in a body.

The body will lie in state tomorrow from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Masonic lodge-rooms that friends of the family may view the late ex-Mayor. The public funeral will be held Friday at 2 o'clock, and will be conducted by the Oregon City Lodge of Elks, but the services at the Crematory will be private.

CASTO, Joseph Scinton
Jan. 14, 1909; Oregonian, p 5 (photo)
"Dr. Joseph S. Casto Dead"
Oregon City, Or., Jan. 13

Dr. Joseph Scinton Casto, one of the most prominent grangers in Oregon, passed away at his home at Carus Tuesday evening. About two and one-half months ago Dr. Casto suffered from an attack of paralysis, from which he never recovered, but he was conscious to the last minute.

Dr. Casto was born on a farm in Knox County, Ohio, May 20, 1827, and his early life was spent on a farm near Mount Vernon, Ohio. Then he took up a course of medicine in Rush Medical College, Chicago. After graduating from that institution, he practiced medicine in Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Colorado and Oregon. In 1862 he was married to Miss Julia Augusta Lake and in 1865 was ordained to preach in the Baptist Church in Cumberland, Clark County, Illinois.

Dr. Casto came to the Coast in 1870 with his family and for many years made his home at New Era. From that place he went to Carus, where he lived till his death.

Dr. Casto first joined the grange in Washington in 1873, and for many years has been actively engaged in building up the organization in Oregon. No man was better posted on grange matters than Dr. Casto and he served two terms as lecturer of the State Grange of Oregon. At the time of his death he was a member of the Milwaukie Grange, P. of H. He was also a member of Multnomah Lodge, A.F. and A.M., of Oregon City. Dr. Casto was known throughout the state as a man of high character and sterling integrity. The funeral will be held Friday, January 15, at the First Baptist Church, in Oregon City, at 11 AM., and the interment will be in the Riverview Cemetery.

Dr. Casto leaves, besides a large circle of friends, a widow and the following children: Mrs. Charlotte LaMar, of Oakland, Cal.; S. L. Casto, of Yamhill, Or.; Mrs. Augusta Andrews, of Portland; Miss Kate and Miss Ella, of Milwaukie, who are prominent teachers of Clackamas County, and Charles, of Carus. The eldest son, Frank, died in Texas in 1905.

CAUFIELD, E. G.

"Prominent Citizen Dies"
Oregon City, Or., Nov. 13

E. G. Caufield, 75, who was born and spent his entire life in Oregon City, died here today. He had been a druggist and banker within his lifetime, served two terms as mayor of the city, and had been active in humane society work.

Edwin Grattan Caufield, youngest son of Robert and Jane Caufield, Oregon pioneers, was born in this city August 21, 1859. He attended the Oregon City seminary and his first work was in a local grocery store. He worked for George A. Harding, early-day druggist here, for seven years before entering the drug business for himself in 1886. Clyde G. Huntley became a partner with Mr. Caufield later, and finally bought the business from him.

In 1891 Caufield became cashier in the Bank of Oregon City, of which his brother, Charles H., was president. For a quarter century, with the exception of short vacations in the summer months, E. G. Caufield was never absent from his post at the cashier's window. He retired from active business in 1916.

He served the Clackamas County Humane society as treasurer from the time of its organization in 1891 until his death, and his wife, with whom he celebrated his golden wedding anniversary in June, 1932, has been secretary of the humane group since 1895.

While serving as mayor of Oregon City, in 1897-8, and again in 1906-7, Mr. Caufield urged Sunday closing for local saloons. Largely through his efforts, also, the power lines and unsightly poles were removed from Main street and relocated on Railroad avenue.

Caufield is survived by his widow, Maria Putrow Caufield; two brothers, David Caufield, 88, and Charles H. Caufield, 81, both of this city; 18 nieces and nephews and 14 grand-nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held on Thursday at 2 p.m., from the family home, Rev. E. S. Bollinger of Portland and Rev. H. G. Crocker of Newberg, officiating. Vault entombment will follow at the Portland Crematorium.

CAMPBELL, Hector B.

Aug. 30, 1911; Oregonian, p 4

"H. B. Campbell Dies at 82"
Oregon City, Or., Aug. 29

Hector B. Campbell, aged 82, a pioneer resident of Portland, died at the home of Thomas Anker, at New Era, today of old age. He was found dead this morning by Mr. Anker. Mr. Campbell had been attending Spiritualist meetings there. The body was removed to Portland following the coroner's examination.

Mr. Campbell was a native of Boston, Mass., and is survived by a widow, five children and two sisters. He lived with his son Harry P. Campbell, head bookkeeper for Neustadter Brothers, in Portland.

Mr. Campbell was intimately connected with early Oregon history. He crossed the plains in 1849 by ox team, and came to Oregon. His father, also Hector P. Campbell, was the first school teacher in Oregon, having taught school in a little log schoolhouse at Milwaukie. His sister married Alfred Lewellen, a cousin of Seth Lewellen, who brought the first fruit tree to Oregon, and planted it in his Milwaukie homestead, where it still stands.

He left Oregon in 1870, and went to Bristol, Conn., where he remained until 1886, when he went to Cortchester, New York. In 1891 he again came to Portland and remained here to the time of his death. He was a contractor by trade, but for the last few years of his life had not been actively engaged in his work. At the time of his first residence in Portland he was employed in the Smith & Satson Iron Works, as a machinist.

Mr. Campbell was passing the Summer months with his wife at New Era, where he was camping. He is said by his relatives never to have been sick. He passed away quietly in his sleep.

Mr. Campbell was born in Chester, Mass., January 4, 1829. He was married twice, and two of his surviving children are by his first wife. He married his second wife, who survives him, in Boston, Mass., 40 years ago.

The two sisters who survive him are Mary Lewellen, of Orofino, Idaho, and Mrs. Ellen M. Waite, of Portland. The surviving children are Horace G. Campbell, of La Center, Wash., and Louis Campbell, of Milwaukie, who are the offspring of his first marriage, and H. B. Campbell, Mrs. George Lichtenthaler and Miss Grayce Campbell, all of this city, children of the surviving widow.

"Veteran's Death Sudden"

Hector B. Campbell, who was found dead at his Summer home at New Era, Tuesday, by his friend, Thomas Anker, was a native of Chester, Mass., born January 4, 1829. He crossed the plains to Oregon in 1849, and was intimately connected with the history of the Western territory. He was a veteran of the Indian wars and served the entire campaign in the Klickitat War.

His father, H. P. Campbell, was one of the first school teachers in Oregon, and his sister married Alfred Lewellyn, a cousin of Seth Lewellyn, who brought the first fruit tree to Oregon.

In 1870 Mr. Campbell went to Connecticut, where he remained until 1891, and came again to Portland in that year. In this city he made his home with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Lichtenthal, of 291 East Forty-eighth street.

The funeral was held from Finley's Undertaking Chapel Thursday, and burial was at the Milwaukie Cemetery. He is survived by Mrs. Campbell; his sons, Horace G. Campbell, of La Center, Wash., Louis Campbell, of Milwaukie, and H. B. Campbell, of this city, and his daughters, Mrs. George Lichtenthal, and Miss Grace Campbell.

CHAPMAN, A. J.
March 14, 1915; Oregonian, p 15
"Pioneer Miller, 89, Dies"

A. J. Chapman, one of Oregon's first millers, died Tuesday morning at the home of his daughter, near Alba, Or., at the age of 89 years. Death came suddenly and was due to old age.

Mr. Chapman was born in Devonshire, England, August 22, 1826. He left England at the age of 22 and a few years later married Miss Nancy Markwood, a native of Ohio. In 1856 he crossed the plains to Oregon, building a flour mill on the island near Oregon City and supplying flour for many of the large firms throughout the valley. Mr. Chapman's Oregon City mill was washed away in 1862 and he and his wife barely escaped destruction in the flood. Later Mr. Chapman operated mills in different sections of Oregon and Washington and became well known throughout these two states.

He is survived by eight children: A. B. Chapman, Edward Chapman, D. W. Chapman, F. V. Chapman and Mrs. John Lightfoot, all living near Pendleton; Mrs. C. H. Horsman, of Centralia, Wash., K. G. Chapman, of Tacoma, Wash., Mrs. R. B. Gibson, of Eagle Creek, and Mrs. S. J. Eddy, of Portland.

CHITWOOD, John David

"Pioneer Dies at Damascus"

John David Chitwood, 89, of Damascus, for whom funeral services were held last week at the Mount Scott funeral home, was an Oregon pioneer of 1853 and well known for his work with the grange for nearly 60 years. Graveside services were conducted by Damascus grange No. 260 at the Damascus cemetery where Mrs. Chitwood was buried in 1934.

Mr. Chitwood was born August 23, 1853, near Burnt river, as his parents were crossing the plains by wagon train from Iowa. His grandfather, the late captain Chitwood, was in charge of the train of more than 300 persons.

His father, James Thompson Chitwood, took up a claim at Damascus in 1855, where John Chitwood resided until his marriage to Emma Viola Deardorff, also of a pioneer family, on August 23, 1876. They farmed at Oak Dale near Dallas until 1890, when they took up a homestead near Neskowin.

While there Mr. Chitwood helped establish a school district and a postoffice. He served both as school clerk and director as well as postmaster until 1900 when he moved back to Damascus.

Active in Damascus community affairs, he was director of the Damascus school board five years and served 30 years on the election board, retiring from the latter at the age of 87.

Active in organizing granges throughout the state, he was also active in the Oregon Pioneer association, of which he was a past president. He was crowned king of the Sandy pioneers at the group's 1942 meeting.

He first joined Dallas grange No. 61 in 1884, and was one of the organizers of Salt Creek No. 197, Oak Grove No. 198 and Pleasant Valley No. 201, being master of the latter four years. In 1889 he was elected steward of the state grange, an office held for four years. He was chaplain for ten years. He held many offices in the local granges.

He died at the home of his son, John S., at Damascus March 21 after a short illness. Funeral services were last Wednesday. Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Hazel Bliss, Pleasant Valley, Or.; Mrs.

Emma Rodlun, Forest Grove; Mrs. Dollie Greenwell, Portland, and Mrs. Mary Eckert, Portland; three sons, Harry M., Koskia, Idaho; John S., Damascus, and David L., Montesano, Wash.; 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

COCHRAN, Fannie L. (Kelly)
June 16, 1909; Oregonian, p 6
"Pioneer Laid To Rest"
Oregon City, Or., June 15

The funeral services following the death of Mrs. Fannie L. Cochran, who died at her home in this city on Saturday evening, were held this afternoon at St. Paul's Church, Rev. T. F. Bowen officiating, assisted by Rev. R. K. Hammond. A large congregation assembled to honor the memory of their deceased friend, and the unusual quantity of beautiful floral offerings were a silent manifestation of the high place Mrs. Cochran occupied in the esteem of her neighbors.

Mrs. Cochran was the widow of the late Hiram J. Cochran, some time Mayor of Oregon City. Seven daughters were born to them, five of whom survive, Mrs. J. B. Robinson, of Chico, Cal.; Mrs. J. P. Keating, of Portland; Misses Harriet, Louise and Nan Cochran, of this city. She leaves four sisters, Mrs. J. D. Biles, Mrs. M. K. West, Mrs. T. M. K. Smith and Miss Eleanor Kelly, all of Portland.

Fannie L. Cochran was born at St. Thomas, Can., 69 years ago. When a girl of 12 she crossed the Isthmus of Panama with her father, the late Captain William Kelly, of the United States Army, who was stationed at Vancouver, Wash. There she grew to womanhood. In those early days hospitals and other provisions for caring for the poor and the sick were scarce and to meet a pressing need Mrs. Cochran, with a number of other young girls, organized a society known as the "Ladies of charity," and of which she, at the age of 18, was chosen president. A small building was secured, which served as a hospital of six beds, and her the sick and the injured were nursed back to health, or tenderly cared for till death removed them beyond the reach of human help.

The work grew to such an extent that the resources of the "Ladies of Charity" were shortly overtaxed, and they appealed for assistance to the Rev. Bishop Blanchet, the head of the Roman Catholic missions of the Northwest, and in response six Sisters of Charity, with Mother Joseph as Sister Superior, journeyed west from Canada to assume charge of the hospital work. Ultimately a larger building and a new location were needed. These were found in Portland, and St. Vincent's Hospital, with its splendid equipment, ministering to thousands of sick and unfortunate, stands as a fitting memorial to the devotion of Mrs. Cochran and her companions.

When the Civil War broke out Mrs. Cochran was again ready to take up her work for others by supplying the soldiers on the battlefield with medicines and other necessities, and was president of the ladies' Sanitary Society of Vancouver, an organization well known for its philanthropic work.

At the breaking out of the Spanish-American War she drafted the constitution and bylaws of the society, known as the Woman's Emergency Corps.

DAVIS, William X.
Feb. 19, 1919; Oregonian, p 4
"W. X. Davis Dies in Wales"
Oregon City, Or., Feb. 18

From Wales comes news of the death of William X. Davis, 68, a pioneer of the Carus district in Clackamas county.

Born at Axton Farm, in Flintshire, Wales, January 7, 1851, Mr. Davis set sail for America in 1886, coming directly to Portland and driving out into the wilderness at Carus, where he was one of the first settlers.

In 1916, just at the outbreak of the war with Germany, he returned for a visit to his old home and on January 4 of this year went to Liverpool to take a boat home. Boat after boat left but no passage could be secured, until at last, discouraged, he returned to Wales and in his brother's house, sitting quietly in his chair, Mr. Davis passed away on January 22.

Mr. David leaves his widow, now in St. Vincent's hospital, Portland; three sons, Richard, who is on the old home place, and William and John, now in the army in France. It is believed the two sons in France were at their father's funeral, summoned by telegraph. Interment was in the family plot, beside his father and mother in the old country, where he was born.

Robert J. Devine, old-time resident of Clackamas county, died this morning at Oregon City hospital at the age of 94 years.

Death was due to old age.

Mr. Devine was a native of Ireland. He came to the United States 70 years ago. He had for the last 56 years lived in the Eagle creek country, Clackamas county, where his wife died a number of years ago. Since that time he has made his home with J. A. Burnett, old-time friend of the family.

The body is at the Edward Brady funeral parlors in this city. Funeral services will be held at the Eagle Creek church.

Interment will be in Eagle Creek cemetery. November 20, 1921; Oregonian; Sec. 3, p 11 (photo)
"Robert J. Devine is Buried; Tribute to Friends Penned"

Robert J. Devine, who died in the hospital at Oregon City November 5, was born in Ireland March, 1827. At an early age he took to the seas and after awhile he landed in America. He spoke little of his youthful roamings and his best friend in Oregon knew little of him until Devine appeared in Clackamas county, Oregon in 1858.

Mr. Devine was engaged in business first with Fred Severs in keeping a trading post at the east end of the Back-bone, north of the Sandy river, on the old Barlow road leading across the Cascades south of Mount Hood. The post was known as the 'Mountain house.' He acted as one of the clerks of election at what was then Young's precinct in eastern Clackamas county in the fall of 1860 when Abraham Lincoln was elected president of the United States.

Mr. Devine had unusual ability as a leader and extemporaneous speaker. Early in life he taught school in 1861-2, near what is now Currinsville station, in eastern Clackamas county.

In the spring of 1862 he went to Florence, Idaho, and was in the mines until 1874 when he again turned to Oregon. He was located at Molalla from 1875 until 1889 when he married Mrs. Mattie Githens and moved to Eagle Creek, Clackamas county, where they lived until Mrs. Devine died in 1904.

The latter part of Mr. Devine's life was spent at Eagle Creek in what he termed "The Hermitage." Mr. Devine was buried beside the body of his wife in the Foster cemetery, on the hill overlooking Eagle Creek. A short and beautiful service, ----- a mound of rare flowers, took place at the grave.

DIMICK, George W.

"George W. Dimick Dies"

Oregon City, Or., June 30

George W. Dimick, father of Senator Walter A. Dimick, and uncle of Judge Grant B. Dimick, died early today at his home, near Oregon City, at the age of 81 years.

Mr. Dimick was a pioneer farmer of the Willamette Valley and played an important part in developing the agricultural and livestock industries of this section for the last 60 years. He came to Oregon in 1847 and engaged in farming. For a great many years Mr. Dimick owned a grain and livestock farm of more than 1000 acres near Hubbard. A few years ago he retired from extensive farming and located near Oregon City.

Mr. Dimick was an active temperance and prohibition worker and a member of the Methodist Church for more than 60 years. He was one of the first farmers to join the Oregon State Grange, and retained his membership until his death.

Mr. Dimick was born near Springfield, Ill., April 28, 1837. Ten years later his parents crossed the plains to Oregon by ox team and settled on the old Dimick donation land claim, near Hubbard. This claim, with considerable land acquired from time to time, was his home for 60 years.

The funeral will be held at the family home at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The remains will be taken to Hubbard for burial. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Addie Dimick, and 10 children: George D., of Salem; John A., of Hubbard; Lottie M., and Walter A., of Oregon City; Bud, of Portland; Orrin, of Portland; Ray, of Fort Canby, and Ada, Harold and Raymond, of Woodburn.

DIMICK, John R.

May 23, 1912; Oregonian, p 6

"Death in Flames John Dimick's Lot"

Oregon City, Or., May 22

John R. Dimick, brother of Grant B. Dimick, and one of the best known lawyers and farmers in the state, was burned to death this morning at his home near Aurora.

It is supposed that Mr. Dimick found his home ablaze upon returning from a visit to a neighbor, and perished while trying to save his effects. He and Miss May Weatherford, of Olex, Gilliam County, were to have been married June 6, and all arrangements for the wedding had been made. Miss Weatherford is a daughter of ex-County Commissioner Weatherford, who is one of the wealthy Gilliam County landowners.

The tragedy occurred seven months to the day after the death of Mr. Dimick's younger brother, Ralph, the noted Notre Dame University football player, who died in Portland after being injured in a football game. While delirious, as the result of the injury, Ralph Dimick jumped from a hospital window and ran several blocks before he was overtaken. He died shortly afterward.

John Dimick left his home shortly before 10 o'clock telling John Taylor and Alwood Pratt, employed by him, that he was going to visit John Spinney, a neighbor, and would return soon. Taylor and Pratt went to work in a nearby field, and about 11 o'clock noticed that the house was ablaze. They hurried to it, but upon their arrival the building was enveloped in flames. They found several trunks and other furniture in the yard and surmised that Mr. Dimick had taken them out of the building and probably had perished in the flames.

Persons from all parts of the neighborhood hurried to the scene, and waited for the fire to burn itself out. Meanwhile, Grant B. Dimick and his sister, Mrs. Nellie D. Fry, of Portland, were notified. Mrs. Fry came to this city and she and her brother went to Aurora in an automobile. Before their arrival the charred body had been found on a cot, which was near the window. It was evident that Mr. Dimick had been overcome by smoke and had fallen on the cot as he was trying to make his exit through the window. Coroner Wilson viewed the remains, which were taken to Aurora where the funeral will be held probably on Friday.

John R. Dimick was a son of John B. Dimick, a Clackamas County pioneer, and celebrated his fortieth birthday, May 9 last. Besides Grant B. Dimick, he is survived by the following brothers: George A., of Hubbard; Augustus, formerly in the railroad business, but now a farmer of this county, and H. E., of Seaview, Wash. Ralph was the youngest member of the family.

Mr. Dimick was graduated from Monmouth College, in 1889 and the Salem Law School in 1904. He and John A. Carson practiced law together in Salem for about two years and later he and S. T. Richardson formed a partnership.

Subsequently he bought a ranch of 58 acres, and had since then devoted most of his time to farming, having been one of the most extensive growers of onion sets in the state. He sold about $5000 worth of sets from a small tract last year and intended to enter more extensively in the business this year.

About two weeks ago Mr. Dimick came to this city to visit his brother, and it was then that he divulged his engagement to marry. He asked his brother to go with him to get the license and exacted a promise that he would attend the ceremony. Mr. Dimick's father who had lived in Hubbard for many years, died in 1903 and his mother died two years ago. The couple came to Clackamas County in 1847.

A strange coincidence in connection with the fire is that the house was ablaze two weeks ago, but Mr. Dimick and the men employed on the ranch extinguished the flames with little loss. They had been more careful since then, and the only explanation of the origin of the second blaze, is that the chimney was defective. Mr. Dimick was a Knight of Pythias, and that order will have charge of the funeral.

The body was burned beyond recognition. The dwelling was old and burned rapidly and it is believed that Mr. Dimick was overcome by the heat while attempting to remove papers, deeds and documents belonging to clients whom he still served, though retired from active Practice.

"Death Takes D. K. Dill"
Oregon City, Or., Aug. 26

A sunstroke received during the Civil War when he was orderly for General Powell in the Southern invasions, indirectly caused the death at Gladstone today of D. K. Dill, Past Commander of Mead Post, Grand Army of the Republic.

Mr. Dill was about 65 years old and lived for some years at Gladstone. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. A. H. Mulkey conducting the services. The ceremony will be under the ritual of the Grand Army. Burial will be at Mountain View cemetery, Oregon City.

Mr. Dill was one of the best known veterans in the state. He was commander of his post in 1911 and is well known in Portland, where one of his children lives. Mr. Dill joined the Union army with the Company B, Third Infantry of Minnesota. He fought the entire four years under General Powell as his orderly. At the close of the war he married Hattie Bolser in Minnesota and came to Oregon in 1882. He settled on a homestead 30 miles east of Portland. Later he went to Hillsboro and then to Clackamas County, settling near Oregon City, and later taking up his home at Gladstone. The veteran is survived by the following children: LeRoy A. Dill, Lester E. Dill, Ecola, Clatsop County; Mrs. W. C. Brown, Sheridan, Or.; Luella W. Dill, of Portland. Two brothers, J. N. Dill, of Santa Anna, Cal., and Edward S. Dill, of Minnesota, survive.

EASTHAM, E. L.

Jan. 19, 1891; Oregonian, p 2

"Death of E. L. Eastham"

Oregon City, Or.; Jan. 18

State Senator E. L. Eastham died at Oregon City this morning. He was born on the Straham place, five miles south of Oregon City, January, 1848, this place being at that time his father's donation land claim. When he was about 3 or 4 years of age his father sold his interest in this claim and moved to Marion county, taking up a claim on Butte creek, about two miles from Mount Angel. Upon this farm his early years were passed. He attended district school at times until he had attained young manhood, when he left the farm and went to attend the Willamette university. He never completed the prescribed course of study, but after attending school for some time went to Albany, where he clerked for two or three years with an uncle. He afterwards engaged for a time in the business of raising sheep, in which undertaking he prospered, but it was ill-suited to his active temperament, so he sold the ranch and came to Oregon City, where he taught very successfully the Canemah school, studying law at the same time with Messrs. Johnson & McCown.

While engaged in teaching and the study of law he was inflicted by the almost total loss of his sight, and to the months of almost total darkness which followed must be attributed the logical mind which he displayed in his subsequent business career, for during these months of almost total blindness his time was busily employed in systematic thought. In 1876 he was admitted to the bar, and in the fall of the same year he was married to Clara Caufield. His first practice was in partnership with S. Huelet; this partnership continued two years. A marked feature of his early practice was the success which tendered his efforts, as he almost invariably won his cases.

In 1881 he organized and started the Bank of Oregon City with which he has ever since been intimately associated as business manager. About the same time he entered into partnership with T. A. McBride for the practice of law. This partnership continued till 1888 when Mr. Eastham retired from the practice of law on account of the pressure of other business.

About 1886 he became owner of the Walla Walla water works which was at that time almost valueless. Under his direction the system was improved, the business men of Walla Walla were interested and the property became very valuable. He retained a large interest in this property until his death.

In 1883 he first conceived the project which was to release the valuable power contained in the Willamette falls from the hand of a monopoly which would neither lease nor sell, and to place it in the hands of local capitalists, who adopted a most liberal policy to induce manufacturers to locate at Oregon City. These parties, under his direction, first secured control of 1000 acres of land opposite Oregon City, joining the falls of the Willamette. When this was done Mr. Eastham negotiated with Elijah Smith for the ownership of the locks, basin and falls. The purchase was completed in 1857, and Mr. Eastham was elected president of the company. Under his wise management this company has been an important factor in the growth of Oregon City.

As a part of this property might be taken by the state in 1892, under the original grant, his first plan was to ask the state to buy the locks in 1887 or to forego any claim which they might have to this property. This the legislature did not see fit to do; but it was not his nature to idly wait for something to turn up, so he began extensive improvements, which have greatly enhanced the value of this property, and at the same time materially benefited Oregon City. Mr. Eastham was the first to advocate a free bridge across the Willamette at this place, and it is owing to his indefatigable efforts that the free suspension bridge now spans the river.

Toward this structure the locks company, through him, voluntarily donated to the county all that the bridge should cost over $18,000. He was also largely instrumental in promoting public improvements, including the building of roads leading to Oregon City. In 1888 he conceived the plan of using the power at the falls for the purpose of lighting Portland by electricity, and for this purpose organized the Willamette Falls Electric Company with a capital stock of $1,000,000. Of this company he was chosen president and manager. How successful this enterprise proved is attested by the large powerhouse filled with costly dynamos and machinery at the falls, the many wires extending to Portland, and the great demand for lights in that city. Mr. Eastham was public spirited in a large degree and his influence was certain to be cast in favor of that which would benefit and improve the town. He served for three successive terms as school director. Though invariably interested in politics he sought no position for himself and would accept none until the last general election, when he was unanimously nominated by the republican convention for state senator from Clackamas county and was elected by a handsome majority. An incessant worker, it has long been apparent to his friends that he was over exerting himself.

Overwork induced serious illness while he was in Walla Walla, last May, but recovered in part and continued active, as before, until September 1 last when he was taken sick with inflammatory rheumatism. This was aggravated by a strain to the back produced while lifting machinery on the dock. for the purpose of securing better medical attendance he was removed to Portland about October 1st. Two weeks later he fell in his room and fractured his leg, which break was not discovered by the doctors till some two weeks afterwards. He was then removed to P. F. Morey's residence where he remained until four weeks ago, when he was brought back home. During the latter part of his illness there seemed to be nothing the matter with him except physical and mental weakness. On Wednesday Dr. Holt, of Portland, was called to consult with Dr. W. E. Caril, attending physician. He expressed an opinion to the effect that nothing alarming existed; that his system was only debilitated; that with rest and nourishing food he might recover. Friday night he was restless and did not sleep well. On Saturday he appeared worse, so that all Saturday night his brother-in-law, Charles Caufield, N. O. Walden and Dr. Caril watched with him. His sufferings were considerable at times up to a few hours before his death, which occurred at 8 o'clock this morning. He leaves a wife and six children, the youngest being born since his illness began. in Mr. Eastham's death Oregon City has lost its foremost citizen. His worth and ability were recognized by all, and the community feel his death to be not only a public calamity, but an individual loss as well. Flags are flying at half-mast, and a feeling of universal sorrow prevails. The funeral occurs from the house at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

EMMETT, Mary (Lamb)
"Mrs. W. Emmett is Dead"

At 7:30 Tuesday night Mrs. William Emmett died at her home in Estacada. Mrs. Emmett was in her 78th year. Old age caused her death.

She was one of the early Clackamas County pioneers, having crossed the plains in ox team with her parents from Missouri in 1852 and located near Oregon City. Her maiden name was Mary Lamb, and about 1855 she married Isaac Stormer, of the then Oregon Territory. Later she married William Emmett. She had eight children, five of whom survive her, Frank Stormer, of Grant County; Abe Stormer, of McMinnville; John Stormer, of Estacada; Mrs. M. Anderson, of Bend, and Mrs. M. Kandle, of Tillamook. The funeral was held at the Lone Oak Cemetery, at Estacada, Thursday afternoon. Services were conducted at the Christian Church.

EVANS, James Madison
Dec. 16, 1910; Oregonian, p 6
"Captain J. M. Evans Dies"
Oregon City, Or., Dec. 15

Following a long illness, Captain James Madison Evans, one of the oldest steamboat men in the state, passed away this morning at his home in Canby. Death was due to dropsy.

Captain Evans was born in St. Louis, Mo., August 28, 1843, and March 1, 1852, started across the plains with his parents. The travelers in 13 wagons had many thrilling adventures with the Indians and suffered many hardships before the train arrived in Oregon City, October 27, of the same year. Following a short residence here, the Evans family moved to a log cabin at the mouth of the Pudding River. Mr. Evans after several years took up his residence at Canby where the family has lived ever since.

Steamboat work early appealed to Captain Evans, and there is perhaps no man in Oregon who had been connected with as many historic and well-known boats as he. He is survived by his wife and three children: Mrs. Emma Burgoyne of Portland, and Henry and Wilson Evans of Canby. The funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow forenoon at Canby.

"Captain Evans Buried"
Oregon City, Or., Dec. 16

Captain James Madison Evans, one of the best known steamboat men in Oregon, who died in Canby yesterday, was buried this morning, the services being held at the family home, with interment in the Canby cemetery.

James Evans was born in St. Louis, Mo., August 28, 1843. At the age of six, he accompanied his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Evans, to Andrew County, Missouri, with a train of 13 wagons across the plains. The start was made in March, 1852. There were many thrilling experiences on the trip. A brother of James Evans, while playing near the camp, was taken suddenly ill with the cholera, and died after a few minutes of suffering. The family of Mr. Evans arrived here in October, 1852. The train disbanded at The Dalles, and those who came to Oregon City crossed the river near the site of the old brick mill, which is now used by Hawley Pulp & Paper Company.

After a three-weeks' stay in this city, James Evans left with his parents for the mouth of the Pudding River. A cabin was built by the father, and he secured employment with Dr. John McLoughlin in this city. James well remembered the Father of Oregon, and often spoke in the highest terms of his kindness to the settlers. Mr. Evans delighted in telling of his thrilling experiences with the Indians in the early days, and he had hundreds of friends, young and old, who learned with regret of his death.

Perhaps no man in the state of Oregon has had charge of so many boats as Captain James Evans. Among the boats he was connected with in the early days were the Hoosier, Washington, Canemah, Oregon, Willamette, Relief, Elk, Shoshone, Phoenix, Shoalwater, Moose, Gazelle and Franklin. Of the boats of later years, Captain Evans has been connected with the S. T. church, Yamhill, Orient, Occident, Enterprise, James Clinton, Shoefly, Dayton, Echo, St. Carrie, Ohio, city of Salem, Success, Eugene, Eagle, Reliance, Albany, Active, N. S. Bentley, W. M. Hogue, Elwood, Bonanza, Champion, Isabel, A. A. McCulley, Valley Queen, Three Sisters and N. R. Lang.
